Personalize your smartphone's wallpaper is an effective way to fasten your smartphone's home screen as an integral part of your life. An attractive static home screen wallpaper background can make your headset experience more positive, optimistic and exciting to use. Live wallpaper - which moves like a GIF as you press and hold - makes your Android or iPhone user experience even more interesting. Some smartphones come with built-in live wallpapers, but it takes just a few minutes to make your custom live wallpaper out of any video you have. Think how inspiring it would be to watch that hummingbird filmed fitting its wings every time you launch your phone. Does that sound tempting? We explain how to make live wallpaper for iPhone and Android. We show you how to do this natively on your iPhone without having to download live wallpaper apps. We also cover how to do this with third-party apps on Android — the only way to do that on Android. How to create live wallpaper on iPhone If you have an iPhone 6S or later, you can make a live wallpaper on your iPhone natively without having to download an app. This is because the iPhone 6S and newer models (not including the first generation iPhone SE) allow you to take Live Photos and also turn on 3D or Haptic Touch. Live photos are very short video clips that allow you to edit and select the perfect frame for your photo. However, they can also serve as live wallpaper. Here's how to do it on iOS 13 and iOS 14. Step 1: Go to Settings > Wallpaper. Step 2: Tap Select New Wallpaper. Scroll down and tap Live Photos. Step 3: Select a photo. Make sure you have a live photo: Turned on. Step 4: Tap Total. Choose Set Lock Screen or Set Both. The home screen setting is not critical, as the wallpaper does not move to the Home screen. Once you do this, you'll have a live wallpaper that comes to life on the lock screen when you press and hold the image. You can also use several iOS to save a GIF or video as a live photo, which you will then be able to set as live wallpaper. For example, IntoLive is a popular iOS app that can turn your videos into Live Photos, just like Giphy. How to create live wallpaper on Android To create a live wallpaper on Android, you need to download a third party live wallpaper application. There are several of these available at the moment, with some of the most popular including ldtcholutions' Video Live Wallpaper, KLWP Live Wallpaper Maker, GIF Live Wallpaper, and Live Wallpapers Walloop HD & Backdrops 4k/3D. 4k/3D. it is also a wide range of automated live wallpaper applications that make and set different live wallpapers for you. For example, Muzei Live Wallpaper updates your Android smartphone every day with a new live wallpaper based on a famous artwork. Meanwhile, Forest Live Wallpaper provides you with forest-themed live wallpapers. However, if you want to make your own live wallpapers on Android, here's how to use Video Live Wallpaper to do so. Step 1: Open the app, and then tap Gallery. Select the video you want to set as live wallpaper. Step 2: Choose the settings you like for live wallpaper. There's an option for playing audio, which probably isn't the best idea if you want to save battery or be discreet. You can also replay the video so it plays repeatedly — you can even choose Play Video Screen, which keeps live wallpaper running even when you're in an app. Step 3: After selecting the desired settings, tap Set Live Wallpaper. That's it, that's it. While there are many similar live wallpaper apps out there — Video Live Wallpaper is worth checking out — they all work more or less in the same way. Experiment and - above all - have fun. Editors' Recommendations Android was by no means the first mobile operating system, but to this day remains the one with richer customization options. Just think of the fact that Windows Phone has just gotten the option to use custom wallpapers, and Android hasn't had exactly any kind of wallpapers, but animated live wallpapers for years. Apple's iOS also lacks this cool option. But among thousands of living wallpapers, you will find that many of them are not so beautiful, and others clearly lag behind. That's why we chose the 10 best new android live wallpapers that not only look good, but also respond to a level of smooth performance that won't slow down your phone or tablet.
